

IMPORT WITH A HEART

Once again, we have not received good news from Greece. European Union has imposed a draconian austerity plan on people's shoulders. The government opposed to this. A Grexit, which would likely include a forced resignation from the EU, was a frequent topic of discussion. There was a referendum in which Greeks rejected the sacrifices ... but few days later, the government signed to a painful compromise.

AND NOW?

Now, for the Greeks, things are even more difficult than before. There are 1.5 million unemployed, three million people (in a population of 10.7 million) who live below the poverty line, children who are hungry and faint in classrooms, parents who abandon their children in an orphanage because they cannot handle the expenses. In addition, diseases such as tuberculosis come back from the past...

WE HAVE TO DO SOMETHING

Climaxi (a movement for climate and social justice) did something. We import organic products' gift baskets from small family enterprises and cooperatives, as a Christmas gift. Part of the earnings will go to food solidarity structures in Athens. Are you in? Let us know. In December our Greentrance Caravan arrives to Belgium.

OUR PARTNERS

Solidarity for All: Solidarity for all operates as an information knot among the solidarity structures and supports practically the social cooperatives. S4all found the partners for us and they will organize the transportation. S4All takes initiatives, organizes trainings etc, to support social cooperatives.

The family enterprise Markos & Niki Dourountaki Sfakia, South Crete: They run a traditional bakery using pure natural ingredients.

Coop Melantho Nafplion, Peloponnese: a cooperative of six women, who use traditional recipes and integrated crop fresh tomatoes.

Coop Muses of Katerini in Pieria: Thirty women began in 2011, this social cooperative to escape unemployment. They produce traditional pasta, jams and local fruit candy.

The traditional family business Pierroutsakos in Old Sikyon Corinth. They make Greek products in their certified lab, while the raw materials come from their organic farm.

VIOME Factory operating in Thessaloniki: The occupied factory was abandoned by its owners in May 2011. The workers haven't seen any salary since and they decided to self organise and start to produce on their own, with the solidarity of the society. Now they produce natural cleaning products and they are still struggling for legalization.

THEIR PRODUCTS

The products of our partners are not always labeled, but they follow the natural farming or the biological one. Some of them are bio certified and all of them guarantee that no preservatives and other additives are included in the products.
